Coursework Group Code of Ethics

Before investigating other systems ethical dilemmas, you should first establish the group's ethical standards. Your group's Code of Ethics should address these five key areas

COMMUNICATION & HONESTY

- How will we ensure transparent communication?
- How do we handle disagreements?
- What does academic integrity mean for our the group members?

RESPONSIBILITY & ACCOUNTABILITY

- How do we define and distribute work fairly?
- What happens if someone misses a deadline?
- How do we take ownership of both successes and failures?

QUALITY & PROFESSIONALISM

- What standards will we set for our work?
- How will we ensure proper citation and research integrity?
- What does "done" look like for each deliverable?

RESPECT & INCLUSION

- How will we ensure all voices are heard?
- How do we handle different working styles?
- What constitutes respectful disagreement?

CONFLICT RESOLUTION

- What's our process when we disagree about the work?
- When and how do we escalate issues to the instructor?
- How do we give and receive constructive feedback?

Task: Draft a 1-page "Group Code of Ethics" that you all agree to follow. Be specific and practical. For each section, write 2-3 concrete rules.

COMMUNICATION & HONESTY

We commit to:

- Rule 1: Respond to group messages within a day and communicate important updates clearly.
- Rule 2: Be honest about progress delays and inform the group immediately.
- Rule 3: Ensure academic integrity by submitting original work, avoiding plagiarism and acknowledging all sources used.

- Rule 4: Handle disagreements respectfully and consider everyone's opinions before making decisions.

RESPONSIBILITY & ACCOUNTABILITY

We commit to:

- Rule 1: Divide tasks fairly based on each member's abilities, availability and workload.
- Rule 2: Complete assigned tasks at least 48 hours before the final deadline to allow time for review.
- Rule 3: Inform the group in advance if we are unable to meet a deadline and discuss how the work can be managed.
-Rule 4: Take responsibility for our individual contributions and work together to address mistakes.

QUALITY & PROFESSIONALISM

We commit to:

- Rule 1: Review and proofread each other's contributions before submitting the final work.
- Rule 2: Use reliable academic sources and provide proper citations and references.
- Rule 3: Ensure all submitted work is accurate, relevant and meets the coursework requirements.
- Rule 4: Ensure every deliverable is complete, clearly organised and checked by the group before submission.

RESPECT & INCLUSION

We commit to:

- Rule 1: Give each team member an equal opportunity to share their opinions.
- Rule 2: Respect different working styles, cultural backgrounds and personal commitments.
- Rule 3: Listen without interrupting or dismissing another member's suggestions.
- Rule 4:Give constructive feedback without being disrespectful.

CONFLICT RESOLUTION

If conflicts arise, we will:

- Rule 1: Discuss disagreements calmly and directly within 48 hours rather than allowing issues to escalate.
- Rule 2: If a member repeatedly fails to complete their responsibilities, discuss the issue privately and agree on a reasonable solution.
- Rule 3: If the issue remains unresolved after two attempts to address it as a group, seek guidance from the instructor.
-Rule 4: Consider different perspectives and aim to reach a decision through mutual agreement.
